

NCADA

Full-Time Position Available (40 hours/week)

Community Strategist: NCADA is seeking a personable, energetic and detail-obsessed person to provide support for and consultation with local community coalitions focused on substance use prevention. This person will also be responsible for planning and implementing training events in around the region for youth and adults, professionals and laypeople, community and coalition members. This job will require you to interact with and build relationships with a wide variety of people throughout seven counties in eastern Missouri. You'll work in urban, suburban and rural communities with all kinds of people.

The position requires a minimum Bachelor's degree in community organization, social work, education, or a related field, plus experience in coalition building or community development. Professionals must be mature, knowledgeable about substance use disorder and its prevention, highly organized, flexible, reliable and willing to be part of a small but talented team of like-minded professionals who support one another. You must possess strong writing and public speaking skills. Grant writing skills are not essential, but desirable.

The St. Louis Post-Dispatch has rated NCADA as one of St. Louis' Top Workplaces for the last five years. Competitive salary and benefits.
