Hooray for ALL IN!

The All In Clayton Coalition applied for and was awarded the Drug Free Communities grant and we can’t be more excited! The “DFC” grant, as it’s commonly referred to, is awarded to coalitions that have worked hard in their communities to educate and advocate for issues around substance misuse and who wish to further their efforts in preventing substance use among youth. All In joins hundreds of other community coalitions that spend hours assessing the issues in their communities, crafting action plans and initiating prevention strategies that will positively impact change within their community. This is a 5-year grant with the ability to apply for another 5 years following the initial term. The funding awarded allowed All In, a volunteer based coalition, to hire a full-time director as well as implement many other services and programs in the community. We are excited for what the future holds for the All In Coalition and the Clayton community as a whole.

Do you know someone who deserves recognition in the field of substance use treatment? Helen B. Madden was a pioneer in the local addiction field, and worked for NCADA from 1965 until her death in 1976. Since 1977, the award has been presented to a local substance use treatment professional who has dedicated their career to bettering this field.

Hold the Date

Thank you for your support.

As NCADA looks to 2021, we want to sincerely thank our employees, Board members, donors, and volunteers for your support in 2020. Your hard work, volunteer hours, and financial donations make possible programs and services that improve lives and fill the pockets of those less fortunate.

We appreciate the community partners and coalitions that stand beside us as we work to reduce the harms of substance use through education, intervention, and advocacy. Substance use disorders cut across all demographics. They do not discriminate, and effectively combating the disease requires everyone to engage in the fight.

Gratefully,
Alisa Smith
Director of External Affairs
